Education is the key to socio-economic success for the future generations of First Nations. It is important to realize that although “Education is a RIGHT” through First Nation treaties, there are imposed limits to the funding which provides financial assistance to Post Secondary Students through policies of the federally governed agencies. The Financial Assistance Program is primarily funded through the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development (DIAND otherwise known as INAC); and may be subsidized from time to time through other First Nation subsidized funding initiatives. The financial assistance which Post Secondary Students are eligible for is provided through such funding and may not be sufficient to provide full coverage for all student costs while enrolled in Post Secondary Education Programs. The following Student Assistance Program Policies and Operating Guidelines are for the benefit of the Student and to provide clear direction for both Student and the Education Department.

Scholarships have a definite purpose. They benefit schools and institutions because they attract and keep students with high potential and valuable contributions to make.

a) Various scholarships are awarded at all levels for students of all disciplines and backgrounds. Some require students to apply specifically, others will be automatically considered when applying at a university. Criteria for scholarships vary widely -- some are based on marks, while others depend on the student's extra-curricular involvement. If a student has a special talent, ethnic background or hobby, there may be a scholarship available.

b) Schools aren't the only places that administer awards. Often, scholarships are funded through governments, trade unions, companies, corporations and individuals and students may must apply directly to the organization offering the scholarship.

- c) The most important thing is to apply. Many students assume that there is no way that they will get a scholarship, so they don't bother even applying. Many scholarships go untouched for years, because no one applies for them! Students should research all the available awards they may qualify for, understand and fill out the applications, gather additional documentation and submit early. Don't wait until the last minute.
- d) Many scholarships extend beyond the initial amount a student may be awarded. These are known as renewable scholarships. Many of these have conditions that a student must meet, such as maintaining a high academic average, or remaining in school full-time. Some scholarships renew automatically, while others don't. The duration of the scholarship can vary as well.

18.3 As an incentive for post secondary students to apply for scholarships, bursaries, and awards that they may be eligible for tuition savings realized through the receipt of aforementioned will be partially awarded to the student. The student must submit a copy of the official notification of any scholarship, bursary or award received; this document must state that the scholarship, bursary or award was for tuition fees only.

18.4 Upon receiving the required documentation, and successful completion of the current academic year, (final grade reports must be submitted), Michipicoten First Nation Post Secondary Program will award the student 50% of the total amount of scholarship received for tuition up to a maximum of $1000.00 Canadian dollars.

A good start to discover scholarship information includes review of other University websites, Student Awards and Scholarships Canada.

18.5 Students who are registered full-time throughout the previous academic year (September-April only) and have maintained an overall average of a “B” or higher are eligible. Calculations are based on a Grid System developed by the Education Committee and approved by Chief and Council to ensure fairness and equality to all students who qualify. The incentives will be issued in late September of each academic year.

19. Graduation

For students with disabilities/special needs there are Special Bursaries (non-repayable financial assistance) from government agencies. These bursaries may cover disability-related services that may be required for a special needs student to participate in obtaining a post-secondary education. Students are not required to apply for OSAP to determine eligibility for these special bursaries.

If a student is eligible for OSAP (even if it is only for $ 0.01) that student will be eligible for the special services. Students should simply decline the regular financial aid that might be available to students from OSAP ( to avoid loan payments after studies) and accept the Special bursaries as they are a non non-repayable grant.
